Reflection

I am happy that I got an opportunity to get out of my comfort zone and do something new. I enjoyed doing this project (Major Assignment 4). It was a challenging and a great experience. I took some photos for the photo essay to remind and bring back memories of when they were a kid. It was not easy to take those photos because I had to fix a time with the people and it was just a busy week. I took those photos based on the six questions that are from the book as I mentioned before. I had a great time working with new people and got the opportunity to do something and be able to have that moment. For the photo essay, I interviewed a freshman college student who is currently studying cosmetology. Her name is Asmita Rai, 19 years old and she lives in Twin Falls, Idaho. Basically, I did a phone interview with her because it was hard to connect in person. I asked her about her childhood, the life she had when she was little, and the struggles that she went through. Her story might be similar to people who experienced the same things as her. I was nervous when I had to do the interview because I have never interviewed someone in my life. It was my first time doing this and I was shaking.

I believe that I have learned a lot about writing, research, and literacy sponsors with the help of this class and Dr.A. One of the main changes in my literacy has been because of this class. If it wasn't for this class then I would have never known what is literacy sponsors and how they are a huge part of our lives. My literacy sponsors are my family, uncle, teachers through

K-12 and my current professors at UC. I still have difficulties trying to make things clear so everyone can understand but I know that I am not the same person that I used to be a few years ago. I have built up a lot of knowledge from this class to take into my career and my future. I hope my audience will understand the purpose and the message I am trying to send.
